RENOVATIONS

Home renovation is very popular. More and more homeowners are choosing to renovate their homes rather than purchase a new home. There are several types of renovations made by homeowners, whether the need is to update the home, add more space or simply make the home better reflect a family's character and needs. Renovations are often a wonderful way to increase the value of your property, as well.

Kitchen renovations are the most popular type of major renovation in a home. It's also the best way to increase a home's value if it were to be put on the market. Kitchen renovations can be done for numerous reasons - increasing usable space, updating appliances and cabinetry, or they can be done with other renovations.

Bathroom renovations are generally not on the same scale as kitchen renovations. Bathroom renovations offer the means to increase luxury within a home, and increasingly are done to help a family save water and electricity with green fixtures.

Adding Bathrooms - For homes that have fewer bathrooms than is ideal, adding one is a very popular choice.

Additions or adding a room is also very popular. Often, families with two or more children and not enough bedrooms choose to add on so each child can have their own bedroom. Families may also want to add an office, game room, sunroom or something else.
